AN INDEX OF PROPER NAMES IN
 THOMAS BIRCH, THE HISTORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY
 (London, 1756–1757)

By GAIL EWALD SCALA

FOREWORD

ALMOST any position in academe has odd moments the sum of which can furnish a genuine contribution if they are productively used. My assistant Mrs Gail Ewald Scala used hers for a year to compile this index which had been suggested by Professor Howard B. Adelman. It is our hope that it will prove of real assistance to scholars investigating the early history of the Royal Society, the activities of its members, and its and their relations with learned men both within and beyond the British Isles.

I have revised the index as I could and prepared it for the press. It is not a perfect instrument. 'Mr. WALLER having been desired to make an index to N° 6 of the journal books, he this day [3 March 1685/86; Birch, IV, 463] returned it with a most complete index.' We cannot make such a claim. There are undoubtedly omissions, incorrect identifications, assumptions, in some cases two persons telescoped under one entry who should be separated, in others two entries where only one person is concerned, and many identifications remain unresolved. We hope that we have at least not accused innocent members of being remiss in their dues. We have not been able to work at the Royal Society, and we want the index to issue now when the edition of Henry Oldenburg's correspondence by A. Rupert and Marie Boas Hall has focused special attention on the early years of the Society. Both that work of the Halls and the introductory material to their facsimile of Birch have been of immense help.

The index can be corrected by use. Readers are urged to send suggestions to the Librarian of the Royal Society for incorporation hopefully and eventually into a fully analytic index covering both proper names and subjects.
